

GRENACHE MATARO

VINTAGE 2010

"Herein lies a story that dates back to the 1960s when Colin Angas planted the vineyard for this wine. Typically, he selected an isolated spot of lean and tough soils where nothing else would grow, knowing it was these soils that produced the small crops of intensely flavoured fruit needed to make exceptional wine. In the new vineyard, in one corner up on a rise, the soil profile was even tougher. Here some of the young vines failed to survive and needed replacing. In time the replanted vines revealed themselves to be Mataro and not Grenache! Who was responsible for the mix up remains a mystery but the Grenache and Mataro have become life partners as each vintage we pick, crush, ferment and bottle them together

Our Grenache has earned a reputation as some of the best grown in the Barossa region. The low yields and small berries producing amazing concentrated flavours... just what you're looking for with this variety. The addition of a small portion of Mataro accentuates the spiciness of the Grenache and adds a hint of really nice, savoury tannin.

The 2010 vintage has produced produce a lovely savoury, earthy wine showing a bright and spicy palate of red fruits balanced by a fine grained tannin grip derived from the Mataro."
